AIG WOMEN'S OPEN

— MUIRFIELD 2022 —

THE CHAMPIONS CLUB

Hospitality Brochure / 4 - 7 August 2022

The 2022 AIG Women's Open will see Anna Norqvist defend her title at Muirfield. The Championship makes its debut at Muirfield next summer, where the world's best players face the unrelenting challenge of the renowned East Lothian links.

First played at Fulford in York in 1976, after morphing from the Ladies Amateur Stroke Play Championship to include professional players, the event has quickly grown to become the most international major in women's golf and one of the most prestigious.

Since 1979, the Smyth Salver has been awarded to the lowest scoring amateur player returning a score for 72 holes. Like the list of champions, the Smyth Salver has a high profile list of winners, including Michelle Wie, Anna Nordqvist, Lydia Ko, Danielle Kang and the 2018 AIG Women's Open champion Georgia Hall.
